DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 5, 6, 8 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 5, the word "means" is preceded by the word(s) "push-button" in an attempt to use a "means" clause to recite a claim element as a means for performing a specified function. However, since no function is specified by the word(s) preceding "means," it is impossible to determine the equivalents of the element, as required by 35 U.S.C. 112, sixth paragraph. See Ex parte Klumb, 159 USPQ 694 (Bd. App. 1967). Also, "the push-button means", "the protrusion", "the movable lid" lack antecedent basis.

Claim 6, "the spring element" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim 8, "the gas-tight means" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim 12, "the gasket seal" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

Art Unit: 3727

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or

(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

4. Claims 1-5, 7, 8, 10, 12, 14 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Bando et al. (US 2002/0017522). Bando et al. disclose, in figs. 1, 3 and 13, a container comprising stationary cover 11, a movable lid 23, a gasket 53 (fig. 13) fitted in a groove, a spring element 50, a clocking mechanism or protrusions 32, 33, a push-button means 31a, and a refill opening closed by a removable cover 12.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 6 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bando et al.. Bando et al. do not disclose the spring element being metallic coil spring and the gasket seal being silicon elastomer. Official notice is taken that it is well known in the art to having a bias spring element being metallic winding coils applied in a hinged lid of a container and a gasket seal being silicon elastomer . It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to provide the Bando et al. container with a spring element in order to have a lid biased toward its open position, and a gasket seal made from material as claimed, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.

7. Claims 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bando et al. in view of Bando et al. (6,206,221). Bando et al. 522' do not disclose the stationary cover being removable and attachable to the container body by grooves and ribs. Bando et al. 221' teach a container having a stationary cover being removable and attachable to the container body by grooves and ribs. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the Bando et al. 522' with a stationary cover as claimed, as taught by Bando et al. 221', in order to provide an recess to the container so that the wetted wipes can be refilled on the top side of the container.

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Borst and Kanfer et al. teach dispensing container having hinged lids biased toward the pen position and locking mechanism.
